PlayReport · model vs market, data quality

Generated 2026-09-28 20:13 UTC · 101 singles matches in the next 36 h (ATP, WTA, Challengers; ITF, doubles and team events excluded) · 86 with Sportybet prices.

How to read: MODEL % is the data-only probability from match results (Elo, surface-aware, format-aware; bookmaker prices are never an input). FAIR = 1 / model probability.

SPORTYBET is the bookmaker price, IMPLIED its margin-free probability, EDGE = model – implied in points. DATA QUALITY is a completeness score, not a probability. Nothing here is a guarantee; a 70% probability loses three times in ten.

Selections of the day

One preferred market per match (34 matches), ranked by model probability within each market group. Rules: Sportybet price ≥ 1.30 , model $\geq 60\%$, market implied $\geq 45\%$ (the bookmaker must not contradict the pick), data quality $\geq 60\%$, both players ≥ 30 rated matches, no low-confidence game data. STRONG = model $\geq 70\%$ and market implied $\geq 50\%$.

A disagreement means the model and the bookmaker weigh the evidence differently. The tracker records every one of these so the claim can be checked against results.

Notes

- Ratings: Elo from match results, overall + surface blend (weight 0.5), $K = 150/(\text{matches}+5)^{0.3}$; best-of-5 derived from the set probability. Validated in tennis/BACKTEST_RESULTS.md.
- Game markets use a serve-point Markov chain pinned to the match probability; serve/return traits come from the archive (through June 2026) and are flagged stale as they age.

- Results since the archive come from Livescore (2026-09-27 incorporated). Livescore publishes no tennis statistics, so serve/return data is N/A for new matches.
- Historical match data compiled by Jeff Sackmann (tennisabstract.com), CC BY-NC-SA 4.0, via the Aneeshers archive mirror (June 2026 snapshot).
